In 2010 England play host to Ireland and Wales, the two sides who went head to head in 2009 for the Six Nations Championship crown. With Ireland securing their first Grand Slam in 61 years and Wales finishing in 4th place overall, both will be keen to show their true colours at Twickenham.

Obolensky's & Wakefield's Restaurant

Located within the East Stand, these glass-fronted restaurants offer an excellent location within which to dine and then watch the game. Your official RFU match seat, allocated within the stand, close to the facility, gives you ease of access and the chance to return to the restaurant for an interval drink.

Obolensky's & Wakefield's lets you be part of the complete Twickenham experience and soak up the unique atmosphere, with a number of tables within each restaurant having a partial view of the pitch.
